Parents and students wait for their turn to talk with teachers in the 300 hall on Wednesday night. Many faculty members believed the turnout for conferences was better than in previous years.

Bring your parent to school night

By Jacob Firkins
Staff Writer

The first round of parent-teacher conferences were last Wednesday from 4:30 pm to 8:00 pm.

These parent-teacher conferences are usually overlooked by many students and parents. This is an opportunity for parents to meet their kids' teachers.

It is also a time for the parents to hear from their children's teachers face to face on how that student is doing in his or her class.

"The low turnout last year was disheartening," Jeff Cranson said. He guessed that only about 100 out of the 1500 students last year attended parent teacher conferences.

Cranson also gave many reasons for attending parent teacher conferences.

Cranson

The school administration is trying to increase parent involvement in the school and help teachers get more contact with their students' parents.

The teachers receive the day off before Thanksgiving as compensation for conferences. It also helps put faces to names for the teachers.

Cranson also stated that these meetings between teacher and parent(s) are also designed to help them work together to help their students succeed in school.

He believes that sometimes when teachers try to contact parents there can be a conflict.

These parent-teacher conferences are meant to help that by letting the teachers and parents meet personally and talk about what needs to happen to help those students that need help to become the students their teachers and parents want them to be.

Parent teacher conferences will always be an important part of the school. They let the students, teachers and parents all communicate.

Flood victims find assistance via clothing drive

By Tonya Schiestel
Staff Writer

As a result of the flood from two weeks ago, 96 families from Greeley West High School lost their homes and had to be relocated.

The staff here at West wanted to help these families so they started a clothing drive here at the school. They are asking students to donate anything that they think the families could use; from clothes and shoes to air mattresses and pillows.

Robins

The items being donated can be new or used except for shoes and undergarments which need to be new. They are also asking for cash donations that will be given to the families to pay for new utilities once they get moved back into their houses.

>>>Coin drive,

Many funds from out of state have already been donated through connections from staff members and other families here at West. Items and cash donations will be accepted from anyone and everyone who would like to participate in helping out fellow Greeley West families. Donations will be gladly accepted until every Greeley West family that was affected has a stable home again.

Students can drop off items to be donated at the front office in the bin located in front of the athletic secretary's desk. They can also find out more information about how to help or donate by visiting the main office. Although there has been a large amount of donations, "there is never enough," said principal Shelly Robins. "In a time of tragedy it has been really inspiring to see all of our Spartan family come together to help those in need." Every donation, large or small, is greatly appreciated as every little bit helps.

Where are your senior pictures?

Deadline is approaching, yet few portraits turned into yearbook

By Chris Campbell
Staff Writer

Senioritis seems to have struck the students of Greeley West early this year.

The yearbook staff in the school, in preparation for their 2014 issue, have requested that every senior turn in their senior picture by November 1st. In the first week of October, however, only one senior has turned in their senior picture.

The yearbook staff is frustrated by this lack of motivation among the senior class. "Imagine getting a huge stack of random images and the process it takes to organize them. We have to make sure senior pictures are perfect, yearbook advisor Mr. Greg McAdams said.

"It is important to give every student an equal opportunity for turning them in and having the student know they are getting the picture they want into the yearbook."

But seniors have many

excuses - some are better than others.

"I don't know why I haven't taken my senior pictures yet. It's not like I am busy, it's just the due date is too far away to care about. I'll get around to doing them eventually," senior Wesley King explained.

If seniors do not turn in their pictures by November 1st, their school picture from the beginning of the year will be used. Yearbook staff are anxiously awaiting the arrival of senior pictures, and are holding out hope that all senior pictures will be turned in.

Sign here: Every student counts

October 1st marks most important attendance day

By Staff Reports

October 1, 2013 was the first day that students and faculty were required to start the first count day at Greeley West.

In every class, students were required to write a document of some sort and sign their name on an attendance list. Many teachers, students, and even faculty think that it is a big hassle. It takes away time for the teachers to teach and less time for the students to learn. Yet it's very important because the school district is paid money based on attendance for this one two-week period.

The majority of the work fell on the secretaries in the office, who tried to organize all of the reports for the day.

"Today has been a crazy day - beyond hectic. Without great team work, today would and could have been more stressful than it was supposed to be, but right now we are smooth sailing," office manager Jessica Lutz said.

AVID classes hold coin drive for flood victims

By Staff Reports

The AVID club at Greeley West High School tried something new to help out those in need this year. To help raise money for the recent victims of the Colorado flooding, they created a coin drive that was held between all of the AVID classes.

All of the money collected between the AVID classes will be donated directly to United Way and eventually brought back to the victims themselves. The money will go to help those who have been displaced, whose homes have been destroyed and are in need of assistance

Olivas

This weeklong event started on Friday, September 27th and ended on Friday, October 4th.

Only AVID classes participated in this coin drive. The classes competed to see who could raise the largest amount of money.

"The coin drive competition allowed the AVID students to compete against one another all while working towards a greater cause," said teacher and AVID sponsor Jessica Cooney.

In hopes of motivating the students, the winning classes will be waited on hand and foot by the losing classes.

The students and staff hope that by the end of their drive, they will have a lot of money to donate.

Spartans plan military lifestyle in the future

By Ariell Martinez
Staff Writer

Greeley West senior Sheena Rodriguez is not your average high school student, looking for the easiest way into college or planning on jumping straight into the working field.

The path that she plans on taking is not for the faint of heart, as she will be joining the military.

Rodriguez will have many steps to accomplish before reaching that goal. These include graduating from high school, taking the ASVAB test and meeting the requirements - both academic and the basic training skills.

"No one in my family had ever thought about the military or has ever joined," Rodriguez said.

Rodriguez

She hopes to gain discipline and independence, but also wants to know how to work as a team. Not only is Rodriguez interested in the military, it just so happens she enjoys engineering. Eventually she would like to pursue the field of combat engineering. "I feel like it will be an eye opening and life changing event," Rodriguez said.

Not many students sign up for military careers right away.

"Only 3% of students go into military branches after high school, and a majority of those students are males," said Counselor David Cowan.

Some students, however, cannot wait to go into the military. "It's just one of those, I've always wanted to be a NAVY Seal. I've always thought of myself as a warrior," said senior Mason Sedlacek.

Government Down

Everyone knows that the government is "shut down," but the majority of the Greeley West population does not know what that truly means, or why it occurred.

The government has shut down because of a gridlock between Democrats and Republicans in Congress on the subject of the spending plan for the fiscal year that started on October first. Now that may sound complicated, but it's really not. All it means is that the two parties can't agree on how money should be spent in the government this year, and how much money should go to certain projects.

Since an agreement could not be reached in time, some government agencies and programs funded by government money will be forced to close shop for an indefinite period of time. This would include things like National Parks.

However, things that are viewed as important for safety like police departments or military programs will still be funded, so don't get any ideas!

Cheers move Pee Wee clinic to winter season

By Alie Olivas
Staff Writer

Due to a lack of registration, Greeley West's Annual Pee Wee Cheer clinic had to be cancelled. The clinic was scheduled for Monday September 30th, and was open to girls and boys ages 4-12. Unfortunately, the list was not quite long enough to hold the event.

"We think they didn't sign up because it was a week day and it was little kids," said senior cheerleader Caitlin Lutz.

The cheerleaders decided to hold another Pee Wee cheer clinic in the winter during basketball season. They feel that they will see a higher number of kids sign up, and that it will be a great way to fundraise.

Originally, the pee wee cheerleaders were supposed to perform during the football game on October 5th. "We are not going to perform in place of the kids because we are preparing for our competitive season," said Lutz.

This is a view from the cheap seats as Ms. Mariana Polling's dance class performs in the auditorium as part of a class assignment last week.

Dancing machines

Polling's class performs for peers in auditorium

By Riley Mincic
Staff Writer

Ms. Mariana Poling's dance class performed on October 1st in the auditorium in front of a big crowd of students. They performed all of the dances that the whole class had worked on for weeks.

There was a lot of hype between the dancers.

It started late due to some technical difficulties. Once it got started, a group of girls did a hip-hop dance that had some good dance moves to get the crowd into the performances.

These girls did a good job by getting a good score from the judges.

It was starting to get a little competitive between the dancers and their groups as they kept performing. This made those who were dancing dance even harder and perform the best that could.

The judges were a variety of people that didn't judge unfairly. They didn't pick a group and favorite them. They graded every dancer on a variety of things. They were honest and that's what made the competition fun.

There was a lot of preparation for all the dancers and their groups. The students spent about a month's time working their tails off trying to make their dances top notch.

A lot of the dance moves have come from other dances from all over the world. The girls had to learn the dance moves themselves, and then teach it to their groups.

"It takes about two weeks to make the dances. Then it takes about another week to finalize and get the dances perfect," said Polling.

The girls enjoyed being able to make their own dances and picking the music that was being played. It really brings out who the girls are.

When it was dance time, many of the girls were starting to get more nervous. 200 plus students came in to watch the dance groups perform.

"Some girls just said they would take a zero instead of dance in front of all the students," said by Poling. "Once the show got started though, all the nerves went away and the girls all enjoyed themselves."

FFA students greet new members

By Merral Sherif
Staff Writer

On September 30th, the FFA club members took a field trip to Island Grove Center for the FFA Colorado conference.

This was an all-day conference that over 40 students for Greeley West's FFA program attended. They had opportunities to observe workshops and see what other opportunities, among many, that FFA can provide.

Greeley West students were the hosts of this event, which was logical, considering it was held in Greeley, and was much easier for them to do.

"The entry level conference was a big learning opportunity for the FFA members. Spartans visited with present state officers at the peer teaching function," said sponsor Mr. Kelly Longacre.

The event was geared towards

the newbies, who were introduced to the FFA experience by seasoned members.

"It was an enjoyable and opportunistic experience. There were games, and you got to meet new people and learn from different workshop demonstrations," said newcomer Madison Bloom.

"It was interesting to learn about the FFA four year plan and how we can grow through being FFA members. Seeing the program's plans was a great motivation. The team-building was a great icebreaker for the 4 years to come," added freshman Kelsie Story.

Trip to Paris, Barcelona planned for summer

By America Monje
Staff Writer

Next summer there will be a Paris Barcelona trip available for any and all students interested in going. Susan Eastin is in charge of this trip and will be attending it with the students.

They will be spending 4 days in Paris then going to Barcelona afterwards. The trip is going to last 8 days, "It's educational because the students get to use the languages they're learning and they get see history, because we're going to see monuments like the Eiffel tower, great architecture, visit Notre Dame, and the Palace of Versailles. It's both educational and fun." Mrs. Eastin said.

Although the trip is available to anyone it's not funded by the school so students and families have to pay for it themselves.

Eastin

This is only the 3rd trip that has been offered at West and it was started by Stephanie Petkovsek, and Amy Pardo.

It is a very adventurous trip and a great opportunity to visit a different country and experience a different culture.

Many students hope to gather some knowledge about other countries. Students will be able to try new foods, meet new people, and explore new places.

New choir director

West has a new choir director this year, Mrs. Paige Ecker. This is her second year teaching, and her first year at West.

Before West, she taught band, choir, theater, and guitar at Weld Central.

Here at West, she has some new responsibilities: Pegasus, Spartones, both men's and women's choir to name a few. In the spring, she will help out with the fall musical, Tarzan.

"I have been enjoying being here, I like the students. Out here, you get a little more dedication to music. This school has a good established music program," said Ecker.

Ecker is taking over this year for the old choir director, Mr. Chad Clark, who left West to pursue other aspects of his career. She is more than capable of performing all of the responsibilities that Clark had, and hopefully, even beyond that.

Anime club finds leadership in Jarnot

By Alex Garcia
Staff Writer

The Anime Club isn't a club most people know about around Greeley West, yet it's quite the interesting club. With over twenty members, it is a fairly big club compared to many others.

The Anime Club is led by President Samantha Jacobsen, a sophomore at West.

According to Jacobsen, the club was created to further emphasize the enjoyment of Anime.

Although most clubs find a way to fundraise the Anime club has not yet found a way to do so. "We were denied the option to fundraise last year because of our first year teacher sponsor," said Jacobsen.

In the eyes of the Anime club, it is a place where individuals with these interests can come and be accepted. "Anime isn't usually something most people put out there," said Jacobsen.

They are there for those individuals to express their interest in Anime. They are a very welcoming group of students who are open to anyone who would like to join. The group holds meetings every Tuesday and Thursday where they discuss Anime. They talk about cosplay and organize a comic workshop where they critique each other's work.

The sponsor Mark Jarnot knows a little about the Japanese animations himself. "I like supporting a variety of involvement in school," said Jarnot, who was chosen sponsor by default because they were already using his room for meetings. But Anime quickly began to grow on him.

Jarnot is looking to participate in the clubs next cosplay at school. Look for Jarnot in the hallways dressed as popular Anime character Grell, which also happens to be his favorite.

Shhh: A Starbucks secret

By Lauren Miller

"Have you ever tasted something that has so much influence, it's taken you somewhere else?" This is Starbucks' message to coffee lovers about their "Fall in a Cup" Latte or Frappuccino. This is a foreign drink to most Starbucks lovers, as it is a part of the Starbucks Secret Menu.

This secret menu can be found online but is unknown to most. "Created for Starbucks fans, by Starbucks fans," Starbucks is proud to let their fans give their input on new recipes, and new drinks. This menu consists of a variety of specialty drinks, baked goods, and more. Any of these items can be purchased at any Starbucks, and anyone can make up their own unique menu item and email it to starbuckssecretmenu@gmail.com. That item will be posted on the Starbucks Secret Menu website and may one day even appear on the Starbucks normal menu.

Popular on the secret menu, "Fall in a Cup" was recently added by a Worker at Barnes and Noble coffee shop who spent over a year perfecting this drink. It can be made into a latte or a Frappuccino and is known as the "epitome of fall in a cup." Another secret menu item is the Cookie Dough Frappuccino, which includes java chips and whipped cream blended into the already rich mixture. All recipes on the secret menu come with full recipes and credit to the inventor. This menu also includes additional sizes to the traditional Starbucks menu.

From Frappuccinos to specialty baked goods, Starbucks' secret menu has a wide variety of choices that definitely express the creativity in Starbucks fans.

Saturday September, 28th The Greeley West Marching band performed at the UNC community Fest for UNC's homecoming. This was Greeley West's first time performing at the UNC event. The festival spanned from 10:00 AM until 1:00 PM with West Marching Band performing at 12:15 and again at 12:45 with the UNC Pride of the Rockies Marching Band and the other present bands.

Greeley West competed up against the rival marching bands Greeley Central and Northridge High School. West first performed at 12:15, followed by Central and Northridge. They played musical selections from the show "Le Mis." To wrap up they played in harmony with the UNC Pride of the Rockies Marching Band along with Central and Northridge's bands.

After performances from the attending bands, West placed 2nd, after Central and followed by the Northridge band. "I'm proud of my students. They played very well as Spartans. They enjoyed and appreciated playing with the UNC Pride of the Rockies band especially," Said the band teacher Chet Arthur.

Physical education teacher impacts kids

By Addison Vergara
Staff Writer

If you feel the urge to complain about how there is nothing to do in a town like Greeley, don't do it around Mr. Mike Stieb, a physical education teacher and basketball coach at Greeley West.

Stieb grew up in Iliff, Colorado, a tiny town centered on farming with only a little over 250 residents.

Stieb, however, excelled in this small town. He was a three-sport athlete, playing football, basketball, and baseball at Caliche High School. He received all-conference and all-state honors in all three sports. Stieb was also a member of the Future Farmers Association.

After high school, Stieb attended Northwestern Junior College in Sterling for two years, and then attended the University of Northern Colorado, where he received a degree in physical education.

"My overall goal was to eventually teach, coach, and farm," Stieb said.

Stieb then taught P.E. at Highland Elementary school for thirteen years, at Heath Middle school for twenty years, and has been at West for the past three years.

Stieb explained he loves being at West because of the students. "A student can have a bigger impact on my day than any adult in the building, and even when I get mad at kids it's just because I want the best for them," Stieb said.

Stieb has a kid of his own, recent Greeley West graduate Makayla Stieb. He also has a wife of twenty-one years, Darla Stieb.

Stieb says he spends all his free time with them, because between his job at West and running his own business (Northern Colorado Lawn Sprinkler), he can become very busy.

Greeley West will play an important roll in this year's school board elections.

Former social studies teacher John Haefeli and former graduate, Rhonda Solis are both running for positions this year.

Only four seats on the board of the Greeley-Evans School District 6 are up for this upcoming November election. There are eight seats total on the school board. All seats up for election this year are four year terms.

Haefeli taught a variety of social studies classes for 13 years at Greeley West. Haefeli retired in May of 2010. Haefeli retired because he thought it was time to explore other areas. Currently, Haefeli is a faculty member at the UNC School of Education.

Education has always been important for him and his wife, Delia Haefeli, who together have over many goals he wants to accomplish, if he wins one of the four spots for the School Board.

"I plan on being well informed, passionate for our children and their needs, ethical, a positive representative for the district and willing to ask the challenging questions," Haefeli said.

Haefeli has big plans for the future and there's not a day where he misses Greeley West. "Every day I miss the students and staff of GWHS," Said Haefeli.

Solis attended Greeley West and graduated with the class of 1987. Solis is a member of the Hispanic Women of Weld County and the Hispanic Leadership Council.

Solis did not return emails for this story.

Flu season around corner

Flu season is just around the corner. Flu season is the time of year when the flu virus is most common. Flu seasons typically begins late fall into late winter.

The flu typically occurs during cold weather. The virus can easily be spread with a person's cough or sneeze. The virus can become airborne and enter into someone's immune system. That's why the flu is highly contagious.

You can also get the flu by touching contaminated surface and rubbing your eyes and mouth. The risk of catching the virus is higher in highly populated areas, Such as schools and buses.

Every year, students miss school due to the flu virus. Most students are smart enough to cover their mouth when they cough or putting sanitizer on their hands.

But there are always those students who don't care whether they get one of their peers sick. If a student experiences flu symptoms, he or she should stay home and receive treatment before returning to school. This will allow less students to get sick and giving the students more time in school

There are many ways to stop the flu virus from spreading throughout the school. First is students should maintain a healthy hygiene. Also, flu vaccines are available at any local doctor's office and at King Soopers Clinic and Walgreens.

Helton wraps up amazing career

Todd Helton will go down as the greatest Rockies first baseman in history. He leads all the Rockies hitting stats from home runs, RBI's, Hits, and doubles.

He played his final home game of his career on Wednesday September 25th. It will be one of the most memorable games of his career.

On his first at-bat, Todd belted his final Coors Field home run. The crowd gave a huge standing ovation.

Later in the game, Todd was being his usual self and got a head first double. It happened to be his 592nd double of his career.

The field was cut special for Todd this warm evening. A huge 17 was cut into the grass to remember Todd.

Riley Mincic
Editorial

At the beginning of the game he received a horse as a retirement gift. His number will also be retired for the Rockies.

Many of the Red Sox players stayed around after the game to congratulate Todd on a successful career with the Rockies.

At the end of the game a firework show went off to send Todd out in fashion. It was going on while he was going around the field saying good-bye.

Body image important to young women

Every time you check out of the grocery store, the shelves are stocked with the newest issues of today's most popular magazines. More often than not they are advertising the newest diet plans that "all" the most popular celebrities are trying, and the cover usually has a blown up image of an incredibly thin model.

This thin image is portrayed not only on magazine covers, but on all types of media. Now more than ever, women are looking to these images for the "ideal" body type. It is obvious that this constant reminder will emotionally drain any woman, and anorexia and bulimia cases are becoming more and more common. If media continues to only portray this very thin body type, women will only feel worse and worse about themselves.

Obesity rates are also an issue in America and some people do believe that these images and diet suggestions portrayed through media are just the push that people need to start a new lifestyle. Although, this theory can be proven true in certain cases, the negative consequences outweigh the few positive. From anorexia to negative body image, these constant "suggestions" can be just enough to mentally and physically harm any woman.

As media becomes more and more a part of a normal everyday lifestyle, all generations of women can be dramatically affected by this very thin body image portrayed everywhere they look. Each year it seems media is available to younger and younger generations and if the chain of continuously displaying only extremely thin models on magazines and media, young girls can be seriously harmed and effected and an extremely young age.

Technology used as crutch too often

The world today is one full of technology. As our society advances, devices like cell phones become increasingly prevalent. It seems like almost everyone has a cell phone, including people who do not need one (like my neighbor's children, who are 10 years old).

As the technology of cell phones has transcended from the common flip phone, to androids and smart phones, the use of them as a "crutch" has also increased.

It's a common site now to walk into a bustling restaurant and see a table of people checking their cell phone, rather than conversing. Instead of working through the challenges human interaction presents, many people would rather delve into their twitter feed as to convey they have more pressing issues to take care of.

It's simple; cell phones are breeding a generation that feels the increasing inclination to isolate. Instead of going to see someone to ask how they have been, the convenience of cell phones allows us to simply text them. Behind a screen, no human emotion is present. There is no body language, no facial expressions, no changes in tone of voice, just words. When humans have interactions with others through text and social networks only, they are trained to be dull, and old habits die hard. When a situation requires face-to-face interaction, a person that typically hides behind their phone, will have little or incomplete social skills.

More schedule complaints

District 6 seems to change their bell schedules every year because there has not been a consistent schedule at Greeley West in three years.

Changing the schedule not only negatively affects the students because it's hard to memorize a new bell schedule every year, but it also confuses the teachers. There was a circumstance where a teacher showed up to class 15 minutes late.

In 2010, there were separate A and B lunches every day. In 2012 it was one 30 minute lunch. Now, it's 45. That's a lot of changes.

Water floods 37th street last month on the east side of Evans. Floods impacted many in the community.

Floods impact all of us

Colorado has yet made the news again in a repulsive way with the recent flooding around the state. Many areas of Colorado were devastated putting people out of their homes and destroying properties and roads in various regions of the state. Many victims lost their homes forcing them to live with family members temporarily, some even permanently, or relying on shelters provided by disaster relief.

For some family members of victims, their lives could temporarily or even permanently change with giving their relatives a shelter and hospitality. Something so catastrophic at such a sudden moment gives you no time to plan and hits you by surprise. By giving the helping hand your home could go from housing four people to ten in a matter of hours. As in my case I went from four people in my house to thirteen hours after the disaster had occurred.

Though communities were unfortunately impacted like this around the state, we seem to be recovering just fine and displaying the strength we have as a whole. Colorado has been through some rough times in the past years but we continue to be a prime example of the saying "when the going gets tough the tough get going."

Athletes find difficulty

Athletes of Greeley West High School are having a hard time keeping caught up with their classes this year. Many sporting events cause students to miss a lot of their 7th or 8th blocks to travel to other schools to participate in their games.

With that comes missing tests, missing notes, and missing lessons. Therefore the student athletes need to find time out of their busy schedules to make up what they miss in their classes.

However, this year's new schedule is making that difficult for them. Teachers, for the most part, only allow students to come in for help before school, after school, and the first fifteen minutes of lunch. Students are having a rough time with that because they have practices after school; the lunches are shorter this year giving students a hard time to make up work for the first fifteen minutes and then only having 25 minutes left of their lunch to get food, and have it finished before their next class.

Also it's already hard enough for students to make it to school at 7:15 on time, let alone be there earlier than that to make up work.

Many students are wishing that there was a place for Spartan Time in the schedule again this year, so students can travel to other classes to get the extra help, and make up work they need in order to keep good grades and remain eligible for their sports.

Every year, Fritzler's corn maze is one of the top things to do in the fall months, whether its the haunting in the field or the activities surrounding it.

Friends share fall fun

By Jenea Padilla
Staff Writer

The leaves are changing colors and the weather is getting cooler, which means fall is here with all of its fun activities. Exciting things for people to participate in during the fall include going to the corn maze, experiencing the haunted houses, visiting the pumpkin patch, carving pumpkins, and lots more.

Fritzler's Corn Maze in Lasalle opened Saturday, September 21st. The corn maze includes the pumpkin patch, the Scream Acres, and so much more. It's a fun place for families, and friends to hang out and enjoy their time.

Harper Sheets a junior here at Greeley West High school is one of the many people who enjoy going to the corn maze every fall. "There is nothing to do in Greeley," Sheets said, "so when something seasonal comes close to town I like to make sure I participate."

Sheets also enjoys watching fall football, going to haunted houses, and going to the pumpkin patch.

Riley Spight, another junior at West, enjoys spending his fall raking up leaves and then ruining his piles by jumping in them. "Hard work pays off," Spight said. "So while getting my chores done I'm still having fun."

Fall is full of fun activities and things to do. From going to Fritzler's corn maze, drinking a pumpkin spice latte from Starbucks, carving a pumpkin for Halloween, getting spooked at all the scary houses, trick-or-treating, or jumping in the leaves at home, there's always something exciting to do in the fall.

One fall activity special to Colorado - skiing. Many resorts open after fall's first snow

FASHION TRENDS: Homecoming

As many students who attended the homecoming dance at Greeley West know, dresses this year were as fun and unique as ever. From high-low to strapless, dresses have taken to these seasons' fashions and created a more formal style through it.

Vibrant colors are very popular this season and many of the dresses had more color than ever. Several girls wore high-low dresses, which can be strapless or have straps and usually are fitted on top and flow away from the waist shorter in the front and longer in the back. Another dress style, which has been a classic style for awhile, is the short strapless dress. Although the style of the dress may be similar, between colors, embellishments and fabrics; every dress is unique in its own way.

Horror with some humor

Incidious 2 came out in theaters just a couple of weeks ago and with sold out crowds on opening night movie studios knew it would be a hit from the start.

The Conjuring was a film released earlier this year to the big screen. It was a huge hit and would be a tough contender for the best horror movie of the year.

Incidious 2 is one of those horror movies that are quite predictable. Things like pianos randomly playing, to ghosts showing up randomly.

This movie consists of many humorous parts from what characters say, to what they do. At times, a viewer might mistake this movie for a comedy.

Riley Mincic
Movie Review

The humor between the characters Specs and Tucker will give every viewer a good laugh. They show up in the middle of the movie so there isn't much humor until then.

The story picks up right after its first movie. The ghost that is haunting Dalton in the first movie now haunts a new victim in Chapter 2.

Josh the father of Dalton, is trying to find the origin of where the ghost is haunting. There are a lot of points of action on this journey.

The ending is a cliff hanger that leads people to believe that there will be another sequel to the Incidious movie series.

Night Shade

by Andrea Cremer

Her destiny was always known. Calla Tor was to become the mate of the rival pack alpha to create another pack. They were to guard the sacred sites for the Keepers. But fate has tricked her. She violates the Keepers' laws by saving a beautiful human boy out for a hike. She soon begins to question her fate and the very essence of the world she has known. By following her heart, she might lose everything - including her life. Is this forbidden love worth the ultimate sacrifice?

Andrea Cremer created a true visage of being torn between love and what she has known. Her characters are powerful, some more than they should, but it does not affect the excellent outcome of this book. The slow and dramatic plot leaves a mystery and dangerous feeling. This book left me on my toes for the next one, Wolfsbane.

Soccer team's struggles continue

By Tara Trevino
Staff Writer

This past Saturday the Spartan soccer boys faced the Frontier Wolverines. Although it wasn't a league game there was definitely tension considering it was an in town rival game. The Spartan boys fell short sadly with a loss of 3-1.

The first minute was looking great for the team, when Sadam Noor scored the first goal within the first 30 seconds of the game, and received player of the game.

"Sadam scored the only goal. I believe with us scoring within the first 30 seconds of the game really hurt us. We thought this game was going to be easy and we let up," explained coach Marty Lordemann.

The boys' soccer team has a big season ahead of them along with the upcoming years for the younger boys. The team as of now only consists of three seniors.

"Hopefully we are still able to make playoffs, with all the young boys we have. We can't let down and have to keep working hard to move forward and build for next couple of seasons," Lordemann said.

One of the big adversities in the boy's way of competing for a state title is more than half don't play club soccer. The boy's record stands at 1-8-1 for now. They are still working hard to compete within the 4A league and achieve a win.

The Spartans will have chances to get those wins in the coming weeks with games against Thompson Valley, Silver Creek, Mountain View and Centaurus.

The Spartan soccer players would like all of West's student body to come out and see them play in their next games. They enjoy hearing the cheers and love the support that their fellow students give them throughout the game.

Peaking at the finish Softball hangs with toughest competition

By Eric Seeley
Staff Writer

The Greeley West Softball team dominated with two convincing wins against two of the best teams in the state, Holy Family and Rocky Mountain.

Last Monday, the Lady Spartans beat Holy Family, who is number one in the state for 3A, 10-3. Then they followed up with another convincing win over Rocky Mountain 9-1 on Tuesday. We even had chances Wednesday against Fort Collins, but lost that game 5-3.

The Spartans came out playing with a great deal of emotion the past week because they are fighting for a chance at making the playoffs. The Spartan Softball team has not made the playoffs in recent years, and would love to get back there.

The Lady Spartans didn't play like they normally do. Instead of playing small ball and moving runners over, they used power to overcome their opponents. The Spartans were led by Jordyn Padilla and Brittany Corrales. Between the two of them they went 11 for 16 and a total of 6 RBI.

Lovell just misses state by stroke

By Anna Eisenberg
Staff Writer

The Greeley West golf team wrapped up its season with a handful of successes, but without a state qualifier.

"Overall it was a good season. We have a lot of young players and are almost certain to improve next year," head coach Mike Conner said.

The only player on varsity team from Greeley West was Eric Lovell. The rest of the players came from charter schools in the area who don't have a golf team. Lovell though, was a key player.

"Not to say we didn't have good players this year, they were, but Lovell was a definite leader this year," said Conner.

Lovell missed the cut at the state tournament by one stroke and had real opportunities to make the state tournament. Conner said he was disappointed - as was Lovell - but is sure next year will be better.

There are high hopes for next year with all the young talent now on the team. They believe at least one or two players will make it to state next year.

Looking back, one of Lovell's best memories from the year will be the Boulder invitational.

"One of the toughest tournaments this year would probably be Boulder," said Lovell.

Due to all the flooding in Colorado lately, according to some of the players, the tournament against Boulder was the most different.

"All the flooding created these giant puddles in the course. It was one of the toughest invitational but it was really fun", Lovell explains.

Lovell is also disappointed he didn't make state. He says that he didn't live up to his own expectations but next year will be different.

With the young talent returning next year and Lovell's leadership, future Spartan teams look to find success.

Volleyball donates money for cancer

By Mason Barnes
Staff Writer

Thursday night the volleyball team hosted Fairview and was also the Breast Cancer awareness night. The match was also used for fundraising to go the breast cancer funds and research. Donations were taken for every kill in the match for whichever team students chose to support.

Before the match, a breast cancer survivor, Kim Wronkoski spoke to the crowd telling her very emotional story. The crowd sat back and listened in awe as she went on explaining how she found out about it and the fight it took to overcome it. It was important to her to speak at the match that Thursday night because it is her daughter's old stomping grounds as she graduated last year.

When the match was finally underway, Fairview came out the gates firing on all cylinders winning the first two sets.

West finally settled down to rally from behind and won a hard fought third set. Fairview had a controlling lead on West in the beginning of the forth set leading by as much as 10 points. West would have an answer and had a huge comeback closing the gap to just one point. But despite the great comeback Fairview closed the set with a 25-21 win to win the match in four sets.

Tonya Schiestel was announced player of the game with her 43 digs, and 24 receptions. The team's hard fight may have not been the best outcome, but brought the team closer for the matches this week.

Cross Country runs banana race

By Brandon Holmes
Staff Writer

On Saturday, September 28th, the Greeley West Cross Country team entered the 5K Anna Banana Meet in Grand Junction, Colorado. Both the Boys' and Girls' varsity cross country teams entered the meet. The girls' team, led by senior Katie Lyons, took 3rd place overall. The boys' team, led by senior Jose Vega, took 5th place overall.

Along with the 3rd and 5th place team standings, they also had two of the top 10 finishers overall for the individual standings. Lyons took 3rd place overall and Vega took 10th place overall in the race.

"The Anna Banana is easily my favorite race we enter throughout the season," Lyons said. The Anna Banana is a very popular meet throughout the Greeley West Cross Country runners. She further explained the race to be the fastest one they attend: this due to the fact that the trail is very flat, packed, and full of hard surfaces to run on.

"The Grand Junction trip is also the best team bonding experience we have," Lyons added. The 14 varsity runners left on Friday night and then stayed in a hotel into Saturday morning.

The Anna Banana meet is the second to last meet the Cross Country team has until conference.

How to beat Str8ts –
Like Sudoku, no single number can repeat in any row or column. But... rows and columns are divided by black squares into compartments. These need to be filled in with numbers that complete a 'straight'. A straight is a set of numbers with no gaps but can be in any order, eg [4,2,3,5]. Clues in black cells remove that number as an option in that row and column, and are not part of any straight. Glance at the solution to see how 'straights' are formed.

Trucks enjoy playing in the mud

By America Monje
Staff Writer

It must be fun owning a truck with 4 wheel drive during the rainy season in Greeley. Multiple Greeley West High School students such as FFA president senior Jeremy Reinders and senior Gregg Wall like to participate in what is popularly known as “mudding.”

Mudding involves driving through holes full of mud in mostly trucks and trying not to get stuck. By the end when the truck is completely covered in mud it has officially gone through a “mud bath.” Reinders typically likes to go mudding twice a week, and that’s if his friend’s trucks are working.

Considering he’s a usual he rarely gets stuck, but when he does he’s usually buried in mud. Places that seem to be popular for mudding are the empty lot by Dairy Queen and out by Twin Rivers Road.

It seems that mudding takes a bit of a toll on the trucks but, “I enjoy mudding because it’s awesome and who doesn’t like to play in the mud?” Reinders said.

Reinders

Wall is another one of Greeley West’s most experienced mudders. He actually seems to be the go to guy when inexperienced people get stuck in the mud. He pulls people out of holes almost daily, “I enjoy pulling people out of mud because I get to laugh at them at first, but I’ve been there before so I always help them out.” Wall said.

Mudding seems to be trending because every day more and more Greeley West students go out and try it during off blocks, which usually results in most first timers getting stuck. Mudding isn’t just an activity when you live in Greeley it’s more of a lifestyle and what better way to pass the time then playing in the mud with your friends.

the game was immediately deemed a massive hit after generating an estimated $800 million on its first day of sales and after scoring an extremely high 98 out of 100 on Metacritic.

Gamers all over the world spent hours waiting in line at the games midnight release to be some of the first to play the game. This time around, the notoriously clunky controls of GTA’s past have been greatly refined and improved.

Its grown in other ways, too. Even by Grand Theft Auto standards, the new game is absolutely massive. Instead of a single player character, “GTA V” has three colorful and occasionally psychotic characters. “GTA V” was certainly primed to hit the ground running.

But now that analysts, critics, and developers have all weighed in, the game is finally getting the one demographic it needs the most: the players.
